

The USGenWeb Project consists of a group of volunteers working together to provide Internet websites for genealogical research in every county and every state of the United States. The Project is non-commercial and fully committed to free access for everyone.

Organization is by county and state, and the USGenWeb Project provides you with links to all the state websites, which in turn, provide gateways to the counties. The USGenWeb Project also sponsors important Special Projects at the national level and this Website provides an entry point to all of those pages, as well.

Although the basic unit of organization for the USGenWeb Project is at the county level, State Websites include very important information as well, including such resources for postings of unknown county queries, family reunion bulletin boards, state histories, and maps showing the changing county boundaries. Many states also have ongoing projects as diverse as the transcription of Civil War regiments or the reuniting of families with lost photos, bibles, etc.

As you explore the state and county websites, you will see considerable variation as each page or database is the creation, property and responsibility of an individual volunteer. But, you will also find that all of the counties will provide links for you to post queries, access the state's home page and access the archives. All of the volunteers who make up The USGenWeb Project are very proud of this endeavor and hope that you will find their hard work both beneficial and rewarding.

Dear Indiana Researcher,

Welcome to The INGenWeb Project

The Home of Hoosier Hospitality

In June 1996, a group of genealogists organized the Indiana Comprehensive Genealogy Database. The idea was to provide a single entry point for all counties in Indiana where collected databases would be stored.

The databases were indexed and cross-linked so that even if an individual were found in more than one county, they could be located in the index.

At the same time, volunteers were found who were willing to coordinate the collection of databases and generally oversee the contents of the web page. This special group of volunteers comes from various backgrounds and age groups. They live all across the United States.

They have one common desire, to share genealogical and historical information about the state of Indiana and its many counties with others.

We invite you to visit each of our 92 county Websites to see for yourself all of the great information and data these volunteers have gathered for you.

You can access each of the sites from our
